

Figure 2: Shear vein with high-grade gold in drillhole EO-21-018; inset shows disseminated visible gold (silver-grey minerals are interpreted to be Bi-Te phases, which are common in gold ores in the Rice Lake district). Shear vein is localized along a pronounced change in alteration intensity and veining in the Gunnar porphyry.